HAIRDRESSING SERVICES

Request for Quotations

The Haliburton Highlands Health Services (HHHS) is inviting quotations for providing hairdressing services for the residents of Hyland Crest and Highland Wood and the Acute Care patients.

Specifications may be picked up at the Minden Business Office, or the Haliburton Business Office, or can be faxed and/or emailed to you by calling 705-457-1392 ext. 0

Quotations due by 3:00p.m., Friday, January 22nd, 2016.

The fifth annual Katie's Run for Epilepsy will be fast and flat, compared to previous years where runners and walkers stepped up to the challenge of an uphill climb.

On Saturday, July 9, participants, volunteers and supporters will gather at the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School. The 5 km and 10 km runs will go out and back along the Haliburton County Rail Trail while the 2.5 km walk/run will take place on trails and roads around the school.

Organizers are grateful for the support they have received from Sir Sam's Ski and Bike where the event was held for the past four years. While they can no longer boast a stunning view from the top of a ski hill, it is hoped that the move into the village of Haliburton, as well as the change to a flatter, easier route, will draw more participants and ultimately support more research into a cure for epilepsy.

"Past participants are pretty much guaranteed a better time this year," says co-race director, Trudy Pogue.

Katie's Run for Epilepsy began in 2012 in support of Haliburton native Katie Woudstra, who is now 20 years old, attending college in British Columbia, and has been seizure-free for 3½ years thanks to medication. Her epilepsy is not cured, however, and there are many others whose seizures cannot be controlled by medication. Through Katie's Run, Katie and her family and friends are determined to do their very best to help uncover the brilliance that will end epilepsy – forever.

Jane Isbister joined the organizing committee last year. "Participating and volunteering for Katie's Run was a natural step for me, given that my son has a seizure disorder," she says. "Even though they are mostly controlled through medication, thinking and planning for the next seizure is never out of mind – neither is the memory of the last seizure."

Funds raised by Katie's Run go to Epilepsy Canada (www.epilepsy.ca), the leading funder of epilepsy research in the country.

Registration for the fifth annual Katie's Run is available at www.katiesrun.ca. Volunteers can also sign up on the website.

Tips to survive unintentional ice racing

Living Large

Humour by Steve Galea

Ice racing is an exciting sport, but only so long as it is a) intentional and b) you are in a car.

Unfortunately, that's not the case most times I experience it. In fact, it is normally something that occurs spontaneously when I'm walking my dog in winter or trying to hike up a slope, which is to say, any time I am going anywhere on foot in Haliburton.

That's why I feel confident in providing 10 tips to survive on unintentional ice racing.

1. Accept the fact that you are going to fall; then find someone soft to fall on. Apologize later.
2. If you know in advance that you will be attempting to walk up steep places like Dover's Hill bring along a parachute or, failing that, wear an oversized coat that you can deploy once you hit Mach 2.
3. Trees and rocks are not your friends. Snow banks, however, make fine acquaintances.
4. If you happen to be sliding down a particularly long icy slope, you might as well be productive. One of the things I like to do is email the paramedics with my ETA to the bottom.
5. People will tell you there's no use screaming; that's untrue. It tells everyone else how far the icy patch extends.
6. Lean into the corners – unless they happen to be the corners of immovable objects.
7. When you find yourself sliding down an icy patch while carrying groceries, don't try anything too fancy on the jumps. It's hard on the eggs.
8. Then again, even when you are not carrying groceries, it's probably going to be hard on the eggs.
9. There is a brief window of opportunity, when both feet slip out from under you, when you should try to remember everything you ever heard or read about levitation. Try not to be distracted.
10. Think of it as a learning rather than near-death experience. The flashbacks seem to be a little easier to take that way.

SPARC Networking Coordinator

Supporting Performing Arts in Rural Communities (SPARC) is a provincial initiative to support and connect presenters, creators, producers and animators in rural communities in Ontario. Following the successful 2014 national SPARC Symposium, which attracted over 150 participants from coast to coast to coast, the Arts Council-Haliburton Highlands has been awarded an Ontario Trillium Foundation grant to work with rural performing arts communities across Ontario to assist them in shaping projects and services that will positively impact their organizations and communities.

During this 3-year contract, the SPARC Network Coordinator will have established a Provincial Steering Committee, an online network, and 8 performing arts community hubs across rural Ontario.

The successful candidate will have an interest in the performing arts, strong communication and organizational skills, budget competency, expertise in social media, working knowledge of network development and community engagement. You are a creative self-starter and leader, able to balance working with project stakeholders, communities, and the SPARC Network Steering Committee.

Key responsibilities:

- Develop and promote SPARC initiatives
- Bring together rural performing arts practitioners to create connected communities
- Establish a mentor program to support the regional hubs
- Engage youth in the initiatives
- Improve digital tools for virtual networking
- Support and assist with the 2016 and 2018 Symposia for Performing Arts in Rural Communities

Annual salary $43,000/ 32.5 hrs/week flexible hours
Ability to work in the Haliburton office 3 days a week
Some provincial travel required
Computer and cell phone provided
Vehicle required - travel allowance

Don't quit quitting

If at first you don't succeed, try, try again.

It's a simple message, but one that rings true for many people trying to quit smoking. While the first quit attempt may not always work out, the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit encourages smokers to keep trying because every new quit attempt can bring them closer to success.

"Going smoke-free is a great way to improve your own health and show your loved ones you care," says Jennifer Robertson, a public health nurse with the HKPR District Health Unit. "With many free resources and support programs to help you butt out, there has never been a better time than now to quit!"

To help smokers butt out, the health unit is highlighting these quit-smoking resources and contests:

The First Week Challenge Contest (www.firstweekchallengecontest.ca) encourages Ontario smokers and tobacco users to quit smoking for one week for a chance to win $500.

Entrants must sign up by the last day of the month and stay tobacco-free for the first week of the next month. Every month through 2016, a new winner will be randomly chosen. The First Week Challenge Contest is organized by the Canadian Cancer Society.

Cash prizes can be the motivation for young adults to quit smoking. People aged 18 to 29 years are encouraged to enter the Wouldurather (www.wouldurather.ca) quit-smoking contest by Jan. 24. By becoming smoke-free, contest entrants can win cash prizes up to $2,500. Wouldurather is organized by Leave the Pack Behind.

The STOP (Smoking Treatment for Ontario Patients) Program is coming to Minden and Port Hope on Saturday, Feb. 6. The no-cost program provides quit-smoking resources and five weeks of free nicotine patches for participants. To see if they qualify for the program, smokers can call the health unit toll-free at 1-866-888-4577.

Many health care professionals in Haliburton County, Northumberland County and the City of Kawartha Lakes can provide advice, support and resources to help smokers trying to quit. To find out what is available in their community, local residents can visit the Health Unit website (www.hkpr.on.ca) for a complete list of services.

Smokers' Helpline (www.smokershelpline.ca or toll-free 1-877-513-5333) is a free, confidential service operated by the Canadian Cancer Society that offers support and information about quitting smoking and tobacco use.

Better health can be a major motivator for people trying to go smoke-free, Robertson notes.

Within 20 minutes of quitting, a smoker's blood pressure drops and the pulse returns to normal; within 24 hours of quitting, the risk of heart attack starts to drop in ex-smokers. "The longer you go without a cigarette, the better it gets," says Robertson, noting that after one year of quitting, the risk of smoking-related heart disease or stroke is cut in half.

Commit to good oral health

The beginning of a new year is a perfect time to set new personal and professional goals. While many of us focus on self-improvement after the holidays, dental hygienists remind Canadians not to overlook oral health when making choices about improving overall physical and mental wellness.

"Good oral health is essential for overall health," says Donna Scott, president of the Canadian Dental Hygienists Association (CDHA). Research suggests that gum disease is a risk factor for serious life-threatening illnesses such as diabetes, lung and heart disease, and stroke. Scott adds, "Canadians are never too young or too old to embrace new dental hygiene habits. The whole family can commit to improved home oral health care in 2016 and discuss personalized strategies with their dental hygienist at their next visit." In the meantime, here are some helpful tips to start the New Year:

Infants and Toddlers up to age three: Parents or guardians should wipe their baby's mouth and gums with a clean, wet cloth after feeding. Teach toddlers to hold a toothbrush, but brush for them twice a day using water (no toothpaste is necessary) once their first teeth appear.

Children ages three to five: Help your children to brush their teeth for two minutes twice a day, using a pea-sized amount of fluoride toothpaste. Show them how to brush every tooth surface and their tongue, and make sure that they spit out the toothpaste when they are done.

Children ages six to 12: Children should brush their teeth for two minutes twice a day with fluoride toothpaste and try to clean in between their teeth daily. Help them to make healthy food choices, avoiding sweets and sugars. Have them fitted for a sports mouthguard to be worn during athletic activity.

Teenagers and Adults: Brush teeth with fluoride toothpaste for two minutes at least twice a day (Remember: four minutes is less than 0.3 per cent of your day!). Rinse with an antibacterial mouthwash and clean in between the teeth at least once a day. Eliminate tobacco use and eat nutritious foods that are low in sugar. Wear a sports mouthguard during athletic activity.

Seniors: Brush natural teeth with fluoride toothpaste for two minutes twice a day and clean in between the teeth at least once a day. Clean and soak dentures (full or partial) daily. Brush and massage the gums, either with a soft toothbrush or with a warm, damp cloth.

And of course, everyone from the age of one should visit a dental hygienist regularly to develop an individualized oral health care routine that will ensure a lifetime of optimum oral health.

Serving the profession since 1963, CDHA is the collective national voice of more than 26,800 registered dental hygienists working in Canada, directly representing 17,500 individual members including dental hygienists and students. For more information on oral health, visit: www.dentalhygienecanada.ca.

Share why you #WinterWander

The Ontario's Highlands Tourism Organization (OHTO) has launched a seasonal campaign to invite visitors to throw away their schedules, pull on their mittens, and "Winter Wander" to Ontario's Highlands this season.

Through this nine week campaign, visitors will be encouraged to get outside and embrace the season, to connect with others and celebrate traditions, to cozy up by a warm fire and feel their worries melt away, and to share all of these moments using #WinterWander on Instagram.

"We want to celebrate the ability of Ontario's Highlands to inspire story-driven memories for its visitors, whether it's creating fresh memories, or celebrating those moments they want to experience all over again," says Nicole Whiting, executive director of OHTO.

"With Instagram having one of the most active and engaged user bases, this will be our primary platform to connect with visitors, listen to their stories, and build relationships."

The #WinterWander marketing campaign will run for nine weeks and will feature unique social techniques that will generate visitor engagement by having fans and visitors share their stories of winter through the Instagram channel.

Messaging will be delivered primarily through social media platforms and will be supported with a strategic digital advertising investment and media relations programs.

Though the campaign officially launched last week, the online conversation kicked off with a successful pre-launch Twitter chat on Jan. 6, where OHTO co-hosted the first-ever Canadian Travel Twitter Chat with @TravelChatCA. With #TravelChatCA reaching over 1.2 million Twitter users and trending second in Canada, this chat served to start up the #WinterWander conversation and place Ontario's Highlands as a premier Canadian winter destination within an audience of industry influencers.

Local operators, residents, and visitors can help keep the conversation going by tagging #WinterWander on Instagram and other social media platforms to share stories of how Ontario's Highlands gives winter the welcome it deserves.

CHA announces its Charities of the Year

The Coalition of Haliburton Property Owners' Associations (CHA) is a member-driven group of 48 property owners' associations representing more than 100 lakes from across Haliburton County. While our primary focus is "protecting and enhancing the quality of our lakes", we also contribute to the well-being of our community.

Each year the CHA designates a Charity of the Year. The chosen organization receives:

- Year round exposure to our member associations and through them to thousands of lakefront property owners. A half page colour ad in the shoreline property reports sent to every property owner on the lakes that participated the previous summer in the Love Your Lake Shoreline Project.
- The opportunity to set up a display table at our annual general meeting and meet the Presidents of all our member associations.
- A newsletter article sent to all the associations' newsletter editors.

Given the large geographical area that our member associations cover, in 2016, for the first time, we have designated separate charities in the north and south of our area.

Our 2016 charity of the year in the south is the hospital auxiliaries of Haliburton and Minden.

In the north we have named two charities of the year – Moorelands Wilderness Camp and The Community Health Hub in Dorset.

More Info

When you give to one of our hospital auxiliaries 100 per cent of the funds goes towards modern and up-to-date equipment. It ensures that the best possible care is available for cottagers, seasonal and permanent residents, and that our hospital staffs are supported in their efforts. One hundred per cent of every dollar you give works hard.

Moorelands Wilderness Camp on Kawagama Lake near Dorset makes camp happen for 600 underprivileged children and youth. This camp experience has proven to make a profoundly important difference in their development as positive individuals.

The newly opened Dorset Community Health Care Hub will deliver primary health care services utilizing Nurse Practitioners to the full scope of their practice and will offer a wide range of ancillary health services to year round and seasonal residents.

Buy a meal, give a meal

SIRCH program allows customers to buy frozen dinners and give back

By Jenn Watt

SIRCH Community Kitchen volunteers have been cooking up meals for neighbours in need for years, but now they're offering that same nutritious, homemade food to anyone who wants to buy it.

Called Simply Homemade, the program charges $5 for a homemade frozen meal with all of the proceeds going back into restocking the kitchen to continue the group's work.

"The money that we make for those meals is going back into buying food to make more meals," says SIRCH food initiatives co-ordinator Alisha Lafleur.

"Our Community Kitchen program is our free meal program. Those meals get distributed to about 10 distribution sites, which are our other partner organizations in the community who are linked to clients who get free meals from that program," she says.

Anyone can purchase a meal through the program and Lafleur says they're a great substitute for frozen TV dinners. She's seen the meals go out to busy single people with little time to cook, seniors, people buying meals for a neighbour in need, or to feed people at a group meeting. Really, any time a frozen dinner would be helpful.

The meals are made by volunteers at the SIRCH hub, so expenses are relatively low, Lafleur says. That means the money from the meals sold can go right back into buying groceries to make more meals.

Those who want a large number of meals should contact SIRCH ahead of time, but for people who want to pick up a few dinners, meals are available at the SIRCH Hub at 2 Victoria Street in Haliburton each Tuesday between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. or every other Thursday from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

You can check out what the Community Kitchen has cooking by visiting www.sirch.on.ca and checking out the blog post each week.

For more information, give SIRCH a call at 705-457-1742 or email info@sirch.on.ca.

Cook It Up back next month

It's not long now until Cook It Up, a SIRCH program that takes over Baked and Battered on Mondays, will be back in operation.

Starting Feb. 8 and running until April 25, the dining program that teaches students essential kitchen and serving skills while offering meals by donation to the community will be open to the public.

Alisha Lafleur, food initiatives co-ordinator for SIRCH, says last year's program was enthusiastically received by the public, who showed up in droves to eat lunches prepared by the class. The students ended up with experience and training that has helped them find employment.

This year there are 10 students who are currently in the classroom.

As part of their training, they plan meals around particular types of cuisine.

"The trainees are the ones who plan all of those menus," says Lafleur.

"They come up with the theme that they want to do and what the menu's going to be."

Students present the idea to the team and work through the aspects of organizing a meal considering nutrition, taste and availability in the community.

Thanks to local business Baked and Battered, Cook It Up has a place to serve the lunch, which is free.

Lafleur says the program fosters an "atmosphere of gratitude," which means visitors are asked to make a donation if they can, or just enjoy the food.

The program runs each Monday starting Feb. 8 from 12 to 2 p.m., except for statutory holidays – Feb. 15 (Family Day) and March 28 (Easter Monday).

RRSP checklist

A social insurance number and earned income is needed to start an RRSP.

Contribute to an RRSP by Feb. 29. Why? To qualify as a 2015 deduction, contributions to your personal or spousal RRSPs must be made by this date.

How much should you contribute? To determine your RRSP contribution limit for 2015, refer to your previous year's Notice of Assessment from the Canada Revenue Agency (CRA), or visit the CRA website at www.cra-arc.gc.ca.

Note: For 2015, each taxpayer's annual contribution room is calculated as 18 per cent of their 2014 earned income, to a maximum of $ 24,930, less any required pension adjustments.

Determine what amount, if any, you have already contributed to your RRSP for 2015. You may have made contributions throughout the year, or have unused contribution room from previous years that you can use, up to your 2015 RRSP contribution limit.

Remember to consider group RRSPs. You will receive a 2015 tax deduction for this amount as long as the contribution is made by the deadline.

Watch the mail for your receipts. If you're filing a paper income tax return, you must attach receipts for all amounts contributed from March 3, 2015 to February 29, 2016 inclusive. This includes any amounts you are not deducting on your income tax and benefit return for 2015, and those you are designating as Home Buyers' Plan or Lifelong Learning Plan repayments.

Every situation is different. For advice about the best tax-saving strategies for your personal situation, consult a Chartered Professional Accountant in your community.
